Viscose – A Sustainable Choice

Viscose is a unique fiber that combines the comfort and luxury of natural fiber, which are responsibly sourced from wood pulp. Fabrics made from the use of this fiber, offer excellent attributes which are similar to cotton fiber's strength and sheen.

Environmental Benefits

Made from Renewable Natural Source

Ethically sourced wood can only make Viscose a greater fibre. Sustainably managed forests not only continually regenerate the raw material from wood, but also act as great sinks for the absorption of GHG emissions.

Lower Water Consumption

Viscose needs very less amount of water as compared to other natural fibers during its life cycle and processing.

Biodegradable

Viscose is fully biodegradable and compostable, eliminating harm to human and environment health including marine life.

Reduced Land and Water Pollution

The raw material for viscose - wood, does not require added fertilizers or pesticides, hence reduced land and water pollution.
